

Developing a centralized scheduling application that helps students efficiently manage their study time and collaborate with peers from different classes. The app will integrate with platforms like Blackboard to automatically fetch assignments, track deadlines, and send reminders to work on tasks during free time. By providing personalized study schedules and facilitating group study sessions, the app aims to reduce procrastination and improve academic productivity.